Major H. L. Yount of this city made a perfect score in the 200 yard rifle shoot on the state range while in camp at Port Clinton with the Third Regiment last week, making 50 out of a possible 50. The Major stands at the head of the Third Regiment for marksmanship.

The annual institute of Darke County Teachers' Association will be held in the Auditorium of the East School building, Greenville, Ohio, commencing Monday, August 12, 1907, at 9:30 a.m. and continuing one week. The instructors are Dr. Herr Buchler of Boston, Mass., and Dr. C. C. Ellis, Professor of English Literature in Juniata College, Huntington, Pa.

A young married man by the name of Victor Fitzhans was killed on the P. & E. railroad at a point between Arcanum and Pittsburg, this county, some time between last Saturday evening and Sunday morning. Just how the accident happened is not known. Some fear foul play for it is said he was known to have had about $40 on his person, but only a penny was found in his pockets. He followed ditch contracting and had been away from home for a week working on a ditch. A Coroner's inquest was held Sunday and a verdict rendered of accidental death by being struck by a train. A wife and two children survive him.

Cornelius O'Brien, of whose serious illness we made mention last week, died at his home on Spring street last Friday afternoon. Mr. O'Brien was born in Tipperary county, Ireland, in the year 1829, and was aged 78 years at the time of his death. He was taken down with catarrhal fever and on Sunday a week suffered a stroke of paralysis, which caused his death. He is survived by a wife, 9 children, 15 grandchildren, 3 sisters, 1 brother and a host of relatives and friends. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at his late residence, conducted by Rev. E. C. Petry, assisted by Rev. William Frank of Brookville, and under auspices of Jobs Post. Interment in Greenville cemetery.

The Fair is held at a seasonable time, after the close of the busy harvest, when every farmer and his household, weary with toil and worry with the summer's work and with nothing laborious to confront them requiring immediate attention, can lay aside all cares and take a few days' rest.

The Board will make a special effort to make this one of the best Fairs in the history of the association. It is to the interest of the farmers of this and adjoining counties to show their stock in good condition. In the way of amusement every effort will be made in furnishing enjoyment and pleasant and profitable pastime for exhibitors and visitors. For premium lists or any information call on or address the Secretary.

Organic rocks are so called by geologists because they were formed by the action of life. Such rocks as coral and chalk are organic.

Gettysburg.
Wheat is all cut, partly hauled in and some threshed. What the yield is has not been reported. The timothy hay crop is much better than was expected. The recent rains have done much to increase the quantity.

P. B. Moul, wife and children, visited Cincinnati last week, from which place the wife and children extended their visit to Harrison, and Mr. Moul returned home after the middle of the week.

Miss Gordes of Fairfield county was the guest of Miss Clara Morris last week.

W. R. Deal, wife and children, of Chicago, were visitors of his father's family for several days.

At the election held last Wednesday evening P. B. Moul was elected delegate and H. M. Dershem reserve delegate to represent this charge in the Lay Conference at the annual meeting of the Central Ohio Conference, to be held at Toledo the latter part of next September.

On next Sunday afternoon the Adams Township Sunday School Association will hold a convention in the U. B. church at Oakland. A good program has been prepared and an interesting time is expected. Let there be a good turnout of Sunday school workers.

On yesterday Rev. Deal took four probationers into full membership in the M. E. church.

In less than one week's time our undertaker had three funerals of men each aged sixtyseven years, two of whom were buried the same day. These were Isaac E. Miller and John Starr. The former of these died suddenly, dropping dead at the table just as the family was about to partake of a meal; the latter was killed on the railroad at Ridgeville, Ind., just as he landed at that place to work on the flower park, of which the railroad maintains not a few for ornamentation. Both of these men leave families and a large circle of acquaintances and neighbors. The latter was a soldier.

John and Lee Warner, Z. T. Myers and P. R. Cromer take an automobile ride with John Arnold of Bradford to Franklin tomorrow for diversion.

Many of our citizens are tuning their harp for service at the Great Darke County Fair, which is coming and to which many are looking with longing anticipation. July 29. XOB

How He Painted the Name.

They tell a good joke on a Maine captain of a little coasting vessel, says Chicago News. The vessel was lying in port, and the captain decided to show the old "salts" about there how the name should be painted on a boat. He was fully able to pay a painter to do the job, but he was stingy, and, moreover, he wanted to let people see how readily he could "turn his hand to anything." So he dropped a float overboard, but finding that he could not reach high enough on the bows to do the painting from that standpoint, he went on deck and leaned over the side to do the work. The name, that he desired to put on was Maggie, and having finished the lettering he went on shore to take a look at his work. To his amazement he saw it thus:

"MAGGIE"

Of course you understand how he made the blunder.

A Memory Test Game.
Take six coins—a silver dollar, a fifty cent piece, a twenty-five cent piece, a dime, a nickel and a cent. Have the room darkened or blindfold the players; let the coins be passed quickly from one to another, not in regular order, but, say, the nickel, the dollar, the ten cent piece, the quarter, the cent, the half dollar. Each player holds each coin two seconds before passing. When all have had the coins, the light is turned up, paper and pencil are supplied and the players write down the order in which the coins were passed. The one getting the correct order, or nearest to it, receives the prize. Of course, the order is decided upon by the hostess beforehand.

"Is Our Present System of Taxation Correct and Equitable?"
(A Paper by Henry W. Naegele of Middletown, O.)

In a paper read before the Men's Round Table club of Middletown, O., on March 2, 1907, Mr. Henry W. Naegele of the Middletown Journal discussed "Taxation" in an interesting manner. Mr. Naegele is prominent in labor circles. After pointing out that the tax system of Ohio is unjust, he considered income and inheritance taxes as follows:

"Of all modes of taxation, the income tax is the most just and equitable. Every man can afford to pay according to his income, and ought to do so. There is no other perfect standard of taxation; none other which does not inflict more or less hardship and injustice.

"The tax comes upon the private revenue of each year, out of which the government should receive its share for the annual revenue of the state. If the private revenue is increased, so should be the contribution to the public revenue; if the former is diminished, the latter should be also. This is fair and just. Were it to supersede all other forms of taxation, perfect equality would be established; property and labor would bear each its just share of the public burdens. To do this, it would be necessary to ascertain the income of every man; of every laborer, whether his wages amounted to one hundred or one thousand dollars a year; of every professional man; of every operative, male or female; every capitalist, banker, merchant and mechanic. Upon the gross income, thus ascertained, the income, thus ascertained, the general tax should be levied, pro rata.

"That many men are dishonest there can be no doubt; but when the law taxing income is regularly enforced from year to year, the difficulty of concealment, on the part of the taxpayer, is constantly increasing. His neighbors and competitors in business have an eye upon him. If they believe he is making false statements, and he can not long escape detection.

"Another objection made is that men do not always like to have their incomes known. But why should they not? We have already said that, in the matter of taxation, all are co-partners, having a pro rata interest. What one does not pay, others must. All, therefore, may rightfully demand such information as shall furnish the means of assessing a correct tax.

"Besides this, an income tax well enforced will be the means of diffusing a large amount of information most important in regard to the credit which business men are required to give. The position and ability of every man will be better understood. This is an important consideration.

"We do not advocate the adoption of the income tax as a substitute for all other modes of taxation; our purpose is to show that, so far as practicable, it is the most just and economical mode of raising a revenue.

Inheritance Tax.

"To whom does the world belong, the living or the dead?"
"Men die, and the property they have acquired or held during their lives must pass into the possession of others. May the person who is about to leave the world say to whom his wealth shall immediately descend? May he go farther and say to whom it shall descend for all coming time? May he go farther still and determine what specific use shall be made of his wealth forever? Or shall the laws of the state decide the questions—to whom, for what purposes, and for how long, the wealth of the deceased persons shall descend? Does the world and its wealth belong to the living or the dead, or to both in common? If to both, what portion should belong to each? If the dead are allowed to control a part, why not all? Which party, the living or the dead, will most intelligently decide how wealth can be advantageously employed in production, or in any other mode, for the benefit of the living?"

"These are points involved in the subject of inheritance and the testamentary disposal of property, and are important in an economical point of view, irrespective of all other considerations. These questions have practically been decided by the laws and institutions of society in different ages and countries. Governments have always interfered in regard to the estates of deceased persons, to such an extent as to prescribe limitations and conditions. So far as these laws have been in harmony with instincts of humanity, and the laws of value, they have been beneficial in their operation. But all the wealth, all the institutions, all the interest of society, should ever be regarded as fully under the control of the existing generation of men. This should be a fundamental principle in civil polity; and, if law may interfere in this matter at all, it may do so to any extent the public interest shall demand."

Amend the Constitution.

Wm. O. Mathews of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce and the Ohio Tax League, in an address before the Tax Commission of Ohio, said:

"The Cleveland Chamber of Commerce has committed itself positively upon the proposition that the constitution of Ohio should be amended. A suggestion has been made that it is possible to secure the improvements desired in our tax laws under our constitution as it is. We do not believe it. We sincerely hope the Commission will recommend the constitutional amendment we believe to be essential.

Among the prize games played during the party should be one that brings forward a large sheep drawn on muslin. The sheep must be minus a tail, and the picture must be pinned upon the wall. Then let each child be blindfolded and let him try to pin on the tail in the correct place. The one who can pin on the tail nearest to the correct place receives a prize.

The tea table should be prettily decorated with a mound of moss, in the center of which just as many woolly lambs as there are children should stand. As place cards for the girls have tiny dolls dressed as Bopeep, with small cards attached, on which the name of the little guest is written. The boys may receive balls, jumping jacks and similar toys.
